Around 20 percent of all students between the ages of 12 and 18 experience bullying. Bullying is abuse, and it takes various forms including physical, verbal, emotional and cyber. Students who experience bullying are more likely to suffer from declining grades, increased anxiety, depression and suicidal ideations. Join Bethany Ziegler from TESSA's Youth & Children's Department to discuss bullying. Bethany will go over ways parents and educators can support victims and help curb abusive behavior in youth.
